

BRAINSTORMS

With Ferrin Cox

There has been a lot of discussion lately, both on the tube and in the newspapers, about the standards involved in chicken processing plants. The Atlanta papers printed pages and pages of stories on the subject for two different Sundays. Most of the time both the tube and the newspapers quoted unnamed federal inspectors as their source of information. Just this last week a spokesman for the chicken processors answered. Among other things, he said the inspectors were complaining solely out of fear of a machine replacing them on their job. Now we don't claim to be real smart, we do have a great respect for new technology, etc. but don't understand that statement. How in the world is any machine we know of today going to examine a chicken and make a judgement call on the safety of this meat for us to eat... or "see" a worker doing something against the rules and report it to management. We intend to insure our chicken is cooked well and wing it from there. In the meantime, we expect those federally paid poultry inspectors to do their job.

Those on the federal tax payroll are getting our attention this week. We read that the federal judges (you know the ones who got that 40% pay raise last year) now want the taxpayers to install all sorts of "state of the art" security systems around their homes, remote starters for their cars and cellular telephones. If we spend that estimated $11 million, they will next want bullet proof cars, round-the-clock guards, etc. We kinda think they might need some of this stuff, but feel that once the judges leave the courthouse, their security is like their freedom... it is theirs to enjoy as they please. We ain't real sure how that cellular telephone is going to increase their safety, kinda think this is just to have another guy cause they can't talk confidential information on the things.

Law officers in Gainesville, FL have announced a confession and an arrest in the recent double murder of female University of Florida students. These two deaths on top of the much publicized serial killings of last year are bound to make parents nervous. In fact if our daughter was in school down there, she would be picking her bags... or we would be packing them for her. The students are probably just as safe there as where she was in school, but it would be for our peace of mind cause we just couldn't sleep thinking about those terrible happenings and our darling right in the thick of it all.

We see our reaction to the big parade in Washington and New York was shared by at least one other writer. We saw the pictures of the big guns and thousands of troops rolling down the street and immediately thought of the big May Day parades in Moscow, Russia. Their big thing of years just was to show off their biggest and finest weapons and their crack marching troops. Now we call our honoring the returning Gulf War veterans, but we roll tanks and guns down the street, looking just like the Russians.

The Elba schools have been hit by a double lick. Both proration and a dropping enrollment have combined to cut into the state funds. The proration has hit all schools but the dropping enrollment has also cost Elba schools 2 1/2 teacher units for the next year. This means 2 and 1/2 teachers who were being paid with state education money must be eliminated or paid with local funds. Listening to the plans for handling these problems explained at the school board meeting, it appears to our simple mind that school officials have the problem in hand. It sounds good anyway.

A cigarette maker is again being sued by a smoker... this ain't the first time ner will be the last. What makes this suit unique is that the smoker only wants the cost of trying to quit. The cost is reportedly less than $100 and the cheapest thing for the cigarette company to do would be pay. However we doubt that will happen because it would open up a flood of claims from similar cases.

We received a late report on India Lawless Tuesday afternoon. When we called the ICU telephone at the Panama City hospital, the lady who answered informed us the Lawless family had moved to Room 366. That in itself was good news, but we called the room anyway and found out the young lady was doing fine and was now busy trying to gain back some of her strength.

Farmer-Morrow Wedding Held May 4th

On Saturday, May 4th, 1991, at three o'clock in the afternoon, Karen Marie Morrow and Scotty Clifford Farmer were united in marriage in a traditional double ring ceremony. The ceremony took place in the sanctuary of Elba United Methodist Church with the Reverend Winston Jay officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donnie Morrow of Elba. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Farmer of Elba.

Presiding over the registry table was Mrs. Martha Crawford of Oriskany.

"The Wedding Prayer", which was performed as the couple knelt, and "Always", which was performed as the bride and groom lit the unity candle.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a gown fashioned of ivory tulle. The gown was designed with a wedding hand collar, a lace V yoke, and split collar. The long, Juliet sleeves were accented with inserts of lace. The full formal length skirt was edged with scalloped lace and satin ribbons adorned the skirt.

Application To God's "Holy Hill"

Almost everyone at some time in their life has to fill out an application of some type. It may be as a student for college or as an adult for a job, house, or a bank loan. Whatever the case we are also possibly senseless! Yet applications serve a valuable purpose as it helps that school, employer, bank, etc., know the character of who they are dealing with. In much the same way in Psalm 15 the Psalmist states that the Lord too has an application we must fill out to see if we may enter into His presence, His Holy Hill.

In verse 2 the question asks do we live a blameless life, do we live in right relationship with God and our neighbor or are we more than walking rightly? He asks if we constantly speak the truth? So far we may say yes as these questions seem very broad and general, but in verse 3 the writer begins to get more specific. The questions get harder.

In verse 3 He asks if we ever gossip or speak against our neighbor or do anything to cause him or her harm? The book of James in the New Testament states that the tongue is one of the hardest things in the world to control. We can control horses and even ships in the direction they should go, but not our tongue!

In verse 4 He asks a rather positive question, "Do you speak out against sin and honor those who do rightly?" We may say yes to the first part as long as it's not our own sin. If we look at the record we could perhaps compliment and encourage those who do live rightly more than we do! This question should cause us to pause some as we evaluate it in our lives.

In verse 5 He deals with money. The Bible has a lot to say about money, especially that in obtaining large amounts of it can cause trouble. He asks here if we overcharge people who borrow from us or if we take bribes in making decisions. We may not be in the place of a judge or a bank...but sometimes we do let the possession of money and its use hurt others. Finally the Psalmist says He who does these things, or answers correctly shall not be moved. It is not an easy set of questions but hopefully we can answer them truthfully and be admitted into God's Holy Hill.

WHY GOD PERMITS HIS CHILDREN TO SUFFER

Contrary to common belief, the Bible does not teach that all men are the children of God. Our Lord said to the religious leaders of His day: "Ye are of your father the devil" (John 8:44). But to the believers in Christ at Galatia, St. Paul wrote: "Ye are all the children of God by faith in Jesus Christ" (Gal. 3:26).

As the children of Adam, it is not strange that we should have to bear suffering, for sorrow, sickness, and death entered the world with sin (Rom. 5:12). But some people wonder why God's children, whose greatest desire is to please Him, should have to suffer along with others.

There are several reasons for this. In the case of Job, God allowed His servant to suffer to prove to Satan that Job did not love a godly life for personal gain—and Job was richly rewarded later for all he had borne.

Further, God's people could not be much spiritual help to others if they were exempt from the sufferings others have to bear. In such a case the unsaved would say: "Yes, can't you don't know what it is to suffer disappointments, sickness and pain, as we do?" Then, if it must be remembered that even the most godly saint is not perfect and must at times be disciplined, "for whom the Lord loveth He chasteneth, and scourgeth every son whom He receiveth" (Heb. 12:6). This is done for our good, to keep us from sin and its results.

Finally, suffering and adversity tend to make God's children pray more with sin (Rom. 5:12). But some people wonder why God's children, whose greatest desire is to please Him, should have to suffer along with others.

By Ricky Mularz

There is a battle going on at the Mularz house, and while my wife and I have our opponent outnumbered, so far we are losing badly! The opposition in the battle is two-year-old Melanie, who thus far has refused to budge in the battle of the "poity." We have tried everything from pull-ups to pampers to pants to spankings, but nothing has worked against this formidable opponent. Now that summer is here and Mom is home throughout the day we have hopes that a 24-hour assault will turn the tide; however, if anyone has any proven battle plans of their own...please let us know!

NAMING OF ALL-STAR TEAMS BRINGS MIXED EMOTIONS

The boys' baseball and girls' softball seasons will close out their seasons this week with the naming of the various All-Star teams, and while the All-Stars teams are a part of life, they can cause mixed emotions for the players in all the leagues involved.

In Dixie Minor and Dixie Youth, only a total of 13 players are named to the two squads that will compete later this month against the best players from surrounding towns. In Dixie Minor over 50 young baseball players have given it their all with hopes of making the "Top 13" and over in Dixie Youth over 70 youngsters have played for the past eight weeks with dreams of making the All-Star squad. To simply select the best 13 in each league by vote would be unfair, to say the least, because the coaches of opposing teams often pay attention to only the players on their own teams and don't even know the names of many of the other players in the league. Because of this, a change was made in the selection process last season and continued this year where each coach nominates players from their teams that they feel are deserving of a spot on the team, and the entire list of nominees is brought together for a tryout camp, at which the league's coaches evaluate the players and make the final decisions. This may not be the best method, but it gets more players involved and hopefully will put the best players on the teams.

In Babe Ruth, the league fields both a 13-year-old and 14-15-year-old All-Star squad and both squads compete with the dream of making it to the state tournaments. The 13-year-olds are at a little disadvantage in that they don't get as much playing time as the older players, but this year the entire list of 13-year-olds has been practicing for two weeks and even played a doubleheader last weekend getting ready. Only 15 of the league's 26 13-year-old players can make the squad. So, the early practices and exhibition games should help the coaches determine which of the players are best prepared to represent the league at District. The 14-15-year-old All-Stars are picked by a vote of the coaches and in this case it really isn't that difficult, because most of the players have been starting throughout the season and everyone knows just how good the players are from the season's exploits, and the seasons past.

The city also fields All-Star teams in the girls' 12 and Under and 16 and Under divisions, and both squads compete in the Alabama Recreation and Parks Association tournaments. The coaches nominate their top players, who are placed on a ballot, and the coaches then vote on the 13 that will go on to District competition. Up in the 16 and Under girls, the coaches will be held to select the members of the team and the girls chosen will represent the city.

The players that don't make the All-Star teams will obviously have their feelings hurt; however, youngsters know who the best players are and after a few days will realize that the team is picked by actions on the field and hopefully will come back next season with a new enthusiasm and a renewed dedication to make the teams!

I know that many parents and coaches alike voice displeasure with the All-Star process annually and their main argument is that because of All-Star tournaments the regular seasons end just weeks after school gets out. Their argument is justified; however, youngsters in Elba are just as desiring as those in neighboring towns and should get to compete at the tournaments. Other argument are the opinions of other coaches and parents, who are glad that the season doesn't tie up the whole summer and allows the kids to still have plenty of time to enjoy the summer vacation from the regimented routine of school, and the coaches, who are all volunteers, and who love the kids and the coaching, but too want some time off from the practices and nightly games.

There are a million pros and cons concerning the length of the seasons, the selection of the All-Star teams and the All-Star tournaments themselves. The argument will no doubt be one voiced at this time every year, but the present system seems to work pretty well and I believe that the majority of those involved are satisfied.

These words spoke Jesus, and lifted up his eyes to heaven, and said, Father, the hour is come; glorify thy Son, that the Son also may glorify thee.

As thou hast given him power over all flesh, that he should give eternal life to as many as thou hast given him.

And this is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent.

I have glorified thee on the earth: I have finished the work which thou gavest me to do.

And now, O Father, glorify thou me with thine own self with the glory which I had with thee before the world was.

Farm News With Richard Petcher

PEANUT SCOUTING SCHOOL

The 1991 Peanut Pest Scouting School will be held at the Wiregrass Experiment Station in Headland, Tuesday, June 18, starting at 9:00 a.m. and going until about 3:00 p.m.

If you would like to get a better handle on peanut weeds, diseases and insects, this will be a good meeting to attend. Mr. Ron Weeks will be presiding.

I would like to encourage our growers to attend. A sponsored lunch will be provided for those in attendance.

EARLY LEAFSPOT SPRAYING ON PEANUTS

We are already seeing quite a bit of leafspot on some peanut fields. And this hot, humid weather is ideal for its spread. There are many projects to be done on the farm now, but I would like to encourage our growers to start on their leafspot spraying schedule. The first two spray are the most critical sprays of your entire season because once you have leafspot in your field, it is more difficult to control it. For the first several sprays, you can band sprays at reduced rates. While spraying for leafspot is a good time to apply your boron.

HOLLOW HEART PREVENTION

Boron is one of the micronutrients essential for peanut production. The lack of boron causes hollow heart and hollow heart causes short shelf life on manufactured peanuts.

Many growers apply boron in the fertilizer at planting. If you do not get your boron on at planting time, it is recommended that you apply it with your leafspot spray. Boron is recommended at 0.5 to 0.5 pound per acre sprayed over the foliage in one of your leafspot sprays.

I would suggest you not put it in the first spray if you are banding water. Wait until you are using the normal rate of water and then mix in the soluble. Soluble is 20 percent boron, so if you are looking for 0.5 pounds of boron per acre, you would put 1.5 pounds of soluble per acre. The cost of this is about $1.50. Boron is easily absorbed and translocated from the leaves to the rest of the plant.

CULTIVATING PEANUTS

To control grasses and weeds is the only reason to cultivate. Early cultivation is the best cultivation. You want to get your cultivating done before rapid vine growth begins. Set the sweeps to run flat and shallow and move no soil onto the plant.

Poor cultivation is an excellent way to reduce your yields. Peanuts originate in flower buds which are located in the crown of the plant. Any soil moved onto the area immediately cuts your yields because flowers don't bloom underneath the dirt.

In addition, the moving of soil onto the lower branches also increases the chances of soil-borne diseases. Also, rhizoctonia limb rot is a problem.

CONTROLLING BRISTLY STARBUR IN PEANUTS

Bristly starbur seems to be one of the number one weeds in peanuts at this time. If your bristly starbur are under 4.5 inches tall, a mixture of 11 oz. Starfire, one pint Basagran, and one pint 2,4-DB should take care of them. If your bristly starbur are taller than that, the best control for them is to use one quart Basagran and one quart crop oil alone.

If you have sprayed the Starfire mixture and did not get control of the bristly starbur, you need to wait about 10 days before coming back with the quart of Basagran and quart of crop oil. The reason for waiting 10 days is to allow your peanuts to get over the stress of the previous treatment and also allow the weeds an opportunity for a little regrowth. There needs to be a little regrowth on the weed in order for there to be an absorption site for the Basagran to take effect on the weed.

Livestock And Meat Judging Are Off And Running

Each year June is a very busy month for 4-Hers involved in the livestock and meat judging programs. We have young people from all over the county involved in the programs, and I will have to say they are a pretty outstanding group.

Those involved in livestock judging are Jeff Watson of Kinston, Chris Kilcrease of Kinston, Chris Caldwell of Kinston, Jamie Wysocki of Kinston, Charles Patterson of Kinston, Beverly Flowers of Zion Chapel, Bo Boyd of New Brockton, Charles Bozeman of Elba, Jill Smith of Enterprise, Jo-Ann Smith of Enterprise, Amanda Britt of Enterprise, Reggie Britt of Enterprise, Matthew Jarris of Elba, Shanna Ballard of Kinston, Joe Ballard of Kinston, Irene Bryan of Kinston, Clint Patton of Kinston and Emily Bryan of Elba.

On the meat judging team are Robyn Rhodes, Grant Coleman, Jamie

Brookton, and Laura Hall, all of Elba, Amy Arrington of New Brockton, Cornelius and Crystal Burrows of New Brockton and Stephen Lambert of New Brockton.

All of these programs are set up to help young people to be better people, to be more involved and to learn. We are very proud of all of these kids and all of their achievements, but most of all for the effort they put into the programs they are involved in. Not only are they involved in 4-H, but they also play athletics, they are involved in their church, and they make good grades in school. We feel like this is what a youth program should really be about.

If you want your young person to be involved in a super educational type program, give us a call at 894-5596 and we will be glad to get him involved in the Coffee County 4-H Club.

Brown Patch Is Damaging Disease To Grass

Dan J. Presley, Coordinator

CONTROLLING BROWN PATCH ON LAWNS

Brown patch is the most damaging disease of warm-season grasses in Coffee County. St. Augustine, zoysia and centipede are likely to get the disease while common and hybrid bermuda are less susceptible.

According to Austin Hagan, Extension plant pathologist at Auburn University, excessive nitrogen fertility levels and thatch often lead to outbreaks of brown patch.

There's a good bit of brown patch on lawns in Coffee County due to the excess rains this spring. The disease usually develops on lawns during periods of wet, overcast weather in late spring or fall. Damage is often heaviest after several days of showers with temperatures of 80 to 85 degrees F plus.

Brown patch first appears in lawns as small, circular, brown areas several inches in diameter which quickly increase to three to six feet across. These areas are irregularly shaped and often form patches of brown grass.

To control brown patch, use slow-release fertilizers and avoid early spring and summer fertilization. Increase air movement across turf by relocating landscaping. Water infrequently but heavily in early mornings. A preventive fungicide program is the best way to control brown patch. Many fungicides are available.

SAFE FOOD
We do have the safest food in the world. We have so little residue on our food that the average American's intake contains less than one-hundredth of the level considered safe in internationally recognized safety guidelines.

The fact that analytical chemistry can identify substances in minuscule amounts, as tiny as one part per quadrillion (about like finding a single olive located somewhere with the Great Lakes system, is lost on the general public, and expertly used by critics who play on fears to get their views publicized.

An official of the U.S. Office of Management and Budget recently said, "One of the greatest dangers of the 1990's is our scientific capacity to discover and define ever diminishing levels of risk, that could lead to investing more resources on smaller risks with less and less real return in actual risk reduction or health improvement."

The FDA has monitored pesticide residues in both domestic and imported foods for the past 25 years. In the latest tests, these areas are found that violated EPA guidelines were discovered, and the highest level of violations occurred in imported foods.

CORN
Coffee County has some of the best corn in the state. I have seen in many years. The wet spring has caused problems in some of the other crop areas, but it certainly has been good for the corn.

The 1989 yield was 79 bushels per acre. This year, we are predicting it will be above the 1989 yield this year.

Don't Jeopardize Your New Mattress Warranty

Angela G. Hughes, County Agent

Put a new innerspring mattress on anything other than a matching box spring foundation and you automatically reduce the life of your new mattress up to 65 percent, according to industry tests. Also, you may be jeopardizing your new mattress warranty.

Some foundations look like box springs, but in reality, they are only wooden boxes with a layer of foam on top and ticking to match the mattress. This hard surface makes an innerspring mattress deteriorate, according to the American Innerspring Manufacturers (AIM), a trade association of manufacturers who supply 90 percent of the bedding industry with the steel wire coils needed to make quality mattresses and box springs. Buying an innerspring mattress without a new box spring foundation is not a sound investment.

You may save a little money initially, but in the long run, a mattress that could have given you up to eight or 10 years of comfort is going to break down in half that time.

What about buying mattresses and box springs that are mismatched? If they are made by the same manufacturer and are in a close price range, then the only difference may be the ticking. Matching mattresses and box springs are designed and engineered to go together. They feel as good at home as they did on the showroom floor and you don't jeopardize your new mattress warranty.

Use caution if buying a new innerspring mattress and placing it over a used box spring foundation. A new mattress going to conform to the shape of the old box spring, which will make a worn mattress sag and lose its shape faster.

In the same way, a new box spring foundation is not going to miraculously make a worn mattress less lumpy and more comfortable.

You don't put new foundations under old houses.

PRISONERS CAUGHT IN LESS THAN 36 HOURS

Escapes' freedom is short lived

by Marvin McIlwain
Editor

Two Coffee County prisoners freed from Enterprise City Jail on a fugitive from justice charge from the State of Florida. He had escaped from there, was recaptured and brought to the county jail. He now faces another charge of escape.

Miller had been placed in the county jail to await sentencing after being convicted on charges of rape, robbery, burglary and second-degree kidnapping. He was to be sentenced at 9 a.m. Monday for the felony conviction.

Williams was on his way to work when he spotted someone resembling Miller as he was driving through downtown Elba.

According to Coffee County Sheriff Brice Paul, two men used wire cutters to gain their freedom from the facility. The mesh screen covering the bathroom window was cut, and then a hole was cut in the outside fence using the cutters. It had not been determined how the men obtained the cutting tool.

Miller was recaptured at approximately 10:37 p.m. Saturday in Enterprise. Houston County Sheriff's deputies captured Simmons around 3:30 a.m. Sunday in Dothan. Both men were placed in the Dale County Jail.
